I was introduced to England by the Romans

My wood has very distinctive markings and is much sought after for use in furniture making

Oil made from my fruits is a delicacy and at one time was actually used as currency.

Which tree is this?

My leaves are pinnate which means they are shaped like a feather

I can grow to a height of around 40 - 60 feet and have a rugged, dark bark

My fruits are brown, wrinkled and edible. They are used in many recipes both sweet and savoury.

It is said that people have eaten these fruits for over 17,000 years and that, today, we eat 2.5 tonnes of them each year
